MICHAEL IBRAHIM'S PAROLE ORDER REVOKED

The State Parole Authority today revoked Michael Ibrahim's parole order and issued a warrant for his return to custody.

Ibrahim still has 12 months remaining of his total sentence of 9 years 4 months for the manslaughter in 2006 of Robin Nassour.

He was eligible for parole on 15 March 2013 but was not released until 28 August 2014 and was subject to strict supervision conditions including electronic monitoring and non-association directions.

The Authority today considered advice that Ibrahim was not fully compliant with his parole order by associating with certain persons who were subject to the non-association condition.
